

kitchen & bathroom

journal

december 2013

Chesterfield-based Corrugated Case Co has installed new printing and die-cutting equipment to boost production of protective packaging for furniture and kitchen components. The packaging firm took delivery of a 3.8m printer die-cutter, a 3.2m case dealer and a special short-run box maker. The installation of what is reported to be the largest die-cutter of its kind in the UK is proof this dynamic company is continuing to prove its market reputation. Mark Wilcockson, Managing Director, adds, "The recent investments in additional machinery will only strengthen the relationships we have with our customers."

www.corrugatedcase.com

December 2013